211 Arizona Impact Report

Transforming lives by linking individuals and families to vital community services

A Note From Justin Chase, President and CEO

It is my pleasure to share the 211 Arizona Impact Report with you. After six months of live-answer services, 211 has fielded more than 200,000 calls from all of Arizona's 15 counties.

Due to funding challenges, 211 live-answer service was suspended in July, 2019. Since then, Crisis Response Network worked diligently to identify funding partners to restore live-answer operations.

Live-answer service provides a personal, compassionate, human connection that people deserve – especially during the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. A group of community partners including Valley of the Sun United Way, Arizona Public Service, EPCOR, Salt River Project, Southwest Gas, Tucson Electric Power, UniSource Energy Services and Vtalyt Health Foundation came together to restore limited live-answer services. Following a request from Arizona Governor Ducey, 211 launched the state's COVID-19 Hotline with limited live-answer service on March 20, 2020. With funding from the Arizona Department of Economic Security, 211 24/7/365 live-answer service went live on July 1, 2020.

Since then, 211 has expanded to become the state's go-to resource for health and human services, including general information and referral, eviction prevention and the Resilient Arizona Crisis Counseling Program.

211 Arizona not only links individuals and families to vital community services in their time of need, but also partners with communities to identify gaps and provide solutions through data.

At a time when our communities need us most, it's an honor for 211 Arizona to answer the call.

Alice has two jobs and has been applying for different types of assistance to meet her and her husband's needs. They were getting behind on bills and were struggling to find money to pay for utilities, rent and food. Her husband lost his job due to COVID and was still looking for work. 211 helped her schedule an interview to apply for SNAP as she continues to look for higher paying work. Alice was behind a month in her utility bills and was unable to catch up with her current income. 2-1-1 helped Alice catch up on utility bills, apply for public benefits and explore different job postings to find something that would sustain her current situation.

John stated that he and his 12-year old daughter were about to lose their apartment. 211 staff helped him apply for eviction prevention resources through the Arizona Department of Housing (ADOH). After following up with him, he was still anxiously awaiting a response from ADOH. He shared about other struggles and what his needs were with his daughter. Staff explored options for employment and also identified resources for his daughter who was missing connection with her peers. 211 staff connected him with telephonic counseling services for his family. A week later, staff followed up and John shared about his first counseling experience and that he felt much better. In addition, staff was able to connect him with CRN's warm line if he ever wanted to talk with someone. John shared that his faith in himself was restored as it had been a long time that someone cared enough to help him in any way.

211 Helps Communities Identify Gaps and Encourage Solutions through Data

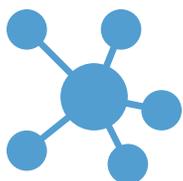

Essential community planning partners reached out to 211 Arizona to review call data to help them better understand the needs of their constituents and make informed decisions to address those needs.

Arizona Housing Coalition utilized 211 call data to identify areas in Arizona with high eviction prevention call volumes related to COVID-19. They leveraged data to start a campaign to encourage 25 municipalities to use their Federal CARES ACT allocation to assist residents with rental assistance. The cities of Guadalupe and Sedona responded by changing their allocation plans to include rental assistance measures.

Arizona Center for Rural Health and Gila County Homeless Task Force each indicated they will be referring their clients to 211 to ensure coordination of services and utilize data to better understand the needs of Arizona residents in their local service areas.

Valley of the Sun United Way, United Way of Yavapai County, Virginia Piper Foundation, Arizona Grant Makers of Southern AZ and Maricopa County Human Services each individually reached out to 211 Arizona for reliable 211 data to help them make better data-informed funding decisions.

Tempe Community Council sought guidance on how to inform their residents of available assistance programs. Rather than duplicating efforts, they leveraged 211's resource collection to inform their marketing campaign.
